School Notes.

Another test is in progress this week.

The students enjoyed the stories told Thursday morning at Chapel by Mr. Pepper, of Memphis.

Our principal received from Dean Roll of the U. T. reports of the Henderson county boys in school there, grades averaging from 87 to 99, which is hardly surpassed by the records of students from any other school in the state.

In answer to a call from Parsons, Prof. Brown went over Friday night and delivered an address on "The Benefits of a High School."

We are all rejoicing over the prospects of a new school building.

The students are beginning to look forward to commencement exercises, which will occur the last week of April.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable evening, a fairly good sized audience attended the recital Saturday night. The pupils all did well, reflecting much credit upon Miss Hughes, their teacher.

The criticism upon our school which appeared in the last issue of THE PROGRESS is considered very unjust by those who are in a position to know. The influence of this school for good is felt not only in Lexington, but throughout Henderson county. Most of the county teachers have been students in Lexington school. A few years ago about 33 per cent. of the teachers of this county passed the state examination. Last year in a similar examination about 69 per cent. made their grade, which shows the efficiency of teachers to have increased over 100 per cent. Why this improvement?

When our students go to the University, they are able to cope with the best. Where did they get their inspiration? A great part of it within the "sooty crumbling walls" of the Lexington school. Look at the records our students make in the higher institutions of learning. Teachers from these schools, capable critics, tell us our boys and girls are among their best students, leading their classes in some instances.

I do not believe that there is another school in the state working under such adverse circumstances that has made as high a record.

Had you ever thought how much more good a boost would do than a knock.

THE PERICLEANS.

On Thursday afternoon, March 28 1916, the Periclean Society met in regular session and carried out the following program:

DEBATE:

Subject: "Resolved that the schools of Henderson county should be consolidated."

Affirmative:—H. V. Pendegrass, John P. Davis.

Negative:—Elbert Weaver, Tom Phillips.

Both sides were strongly defended but the judges gave the decision 3 to 0 favoring the affirmative.

The paper was read and enjoyed very much by all, after which the worthy critic, Jesse Taylor, gave a few valuable hints on the behavior of the members and about person-ating in the speeches.

Harvey Bradfield, Joe and John Davis and worth Powers were indicted for being absent on a previous date without an excuse. All submitted and paid fines of 5c each, except Harvey Bradfield, who was released.

More members were present than at any previous meeting and it is plainly shown that everything points to a fine program by the Pericleans on final night.

Seeing an article in the PROGRESS criticizing very harshly our school, and realizing that it was written by one who is not in a position to criticize it, we, the Pericleans, adopted the following resolutions condemning the article:

"Inasmuch as the criticism against our school, which appeared in the PROGRESS, was made by one who never visits our class rooms and has never made the acquaintance of the student body and has shown no special interest in our school, we do not believe she is in position to give a just criticism. and inasmuch as she reflects upon the entire citizenship of our town as not knowing what a real school is, and presumes that she herself is the only one to tell; be it therefore, RESOLVED, that we, the members of the Periclean Society, and students of the school, condemn such reports and insist that those interested make investigations for themselves and learn of the splendid work being done. Be it further RESOLVED, that copies of these resolutions be furnished each of the county papers with a request to publish them."

We certainly did not think of one as estimable as she, writing such things about our splendid school. Surely she does not know that some sixty or seventy-five of the most worthy youths of the county are daily arriving here, with the aid of competent teachers to equip themselves with the robe of education—education which so benefits us now and forever.

Be it hereby known that we extend the lady a cordial invitation to visit our school and thoroughly investigate its workings from the very foundation.

After the expressions toward the article mentioned above, a program committee was appointed after which the society adjourned.

Respectfully,
GORDON TURNER, Secy.

[NOTE—The "article" in THE PROGRESS referred to was a signed article appearing in our last issue, for which we are not responsible.—Editor.

The presence of E. J. Hall, now 2, Jackson, Miss., in Lexington last Tuesday, the 28th, reminded us of the fact that that was the date of our coming to Lexington to live in 1884. At that time the C. F. McHaney drugstore was in the corner of the former Council Block now occupied by the Timberlake-Buckley firm, and Ed Hall was a stripping clerk for "Uncle Feek," who still lives and is the oldest man in Lexington.
